

CALL FOR PAPERS

The 4th International Gottlob Frege Conference will take place from 15th to 20th September 2025 in the Hanseatic town of Wismar, where the renowned mathematician and philosopher Gottlob Frege was born in 1848 and buried in 1925. This conference, held in the 100th year of his death, is continuing a series of scientific meetings dedicated to the work of Frege and its connections to modern science. This year, the conference will focus on five key areas:

- A comparison of Frege's logic concept with historical and modern approaches,
- Frege's contributions to foundation of mathematics and modern developments
- Frege's linguistic analyses and modern analytic philosophy,
- Frege's polemics and the culture of scientific debates,
- The ongoing influence of Frege's work in modern science.

Conference languages are German or English. We cordially invite you to attend this conference and to give a presentation on the work of Frege and its impact on modern science (45 minutes including discussion). For registration and deadlines, please visit the conference website at

<https://www.hs-wismar.de/frege-2025> or <https://www.hs-wismar.de/en/frege-2025>

The conference will offer presentations by top keynote speakers (cf. website), as well as opportunities for attendees to share their research through oral presentations and publish their papers in post-proceedings. The event will also provide a chance to interact with internationally recognized experts in a stimulating environment, set against the backdrop of a centuries-old UNESCO heritage site in the hometown of Frege.

A special part of the program on Friday will be dedicated to a memorial session in honour of the Frege scholar Lothar Kreiser (1934-2023). We welcome submissions that link to Kreiser's work, and accepted submissions of this nature are likely to be scheduled on Friday.
